ALLEN G. THURMAN

Fitting Celebration of the Old Roman's 77th Birthday.

GRAND BANQUET AT COLUMBUS.

The Most Elaborate, Beyond Any Doubt, Ever Held in the Buckeye State-Great Gathering of the Leaders of the Democracy of the Country-Speech of Ex-President Cleveland.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 11.-Yesterday marked the seventy-seventh anniversary of the birthday of Allen G. Thurman, the "Old Roman" of Ohio Democracy, and the Democrats of the nation made the occasion one to do homage to their distinguished member. From early morning every incoming train brought to the city a contingent of prominent Democrate from abroad, and all day Judge Thurman was the recipient of congratulatory calls. Ex-President Cleveland came in on an early train, and at once proceeded to the executive man-sion. An hour later United States Senator Calvin S. Brice arrived at the mansion and the ex-president and himself made an early forenoon call on the dis-tinguished Ohioan.

The sunshine of the pleasant autumn seemed to add vigor to the frame of the "Old Roman," who, as he shook the hand of Cleveland so warmly extended in congratulation, assured his caller that he had not felt so well for many and that he hoped still to weather a few more years. "But," ance of a grateful duty on my part, to said he. "I have lived long enough to speak of the uniform kindness that I have regularly from heavy down the regular from heavy down to be seen from the regular from heavy down to be seen from the regular from heavy down to be seen from the regular from heavy down to be seen from the regular from heavy down to be seen from the regular from heavy down to be seen from the regular from heavy down to be seen from the regular from heavy down to be seen from the regular from heavy down the regular from heavy find myselr more than appreciated by the many kind friends who have remembered me on this day, and no years could add to the warmth of congratulations which they have showered upon me."

Mr. Cleveland assured the Old Roman that the greetings of this day, which came from all parts of the country, some extended in person, others by letters, and hundreds by wires, were but ters, and hundreds by wires, were but the spontaneous expression of a grateful people toward one whose proud and un-swerving career had won for him alike the veneration of his party and the ad-miration of the nation. "We hope, judge," said Mr. Cleveland, "that you may yet be spared many years of useful-ness to see the fullest fruition of your doctrines and your teachings."

The Old Roman quietly spent the day at his residence surrounded by his family. There was some talk of the visiting clubs tendering him an impromptu reception, but the local committee decided that, in view of his advanced age and enfeebled condition, it would be better to allow him to avoid excitement and to the track of the state of th posal was abandoned.

The Fourteenth regiment armory had been transformed into fairyland. The rafters of its ceiling and its whitewashed walls were hidden from view by thousands of yards of bright colored bunting and silken flags and banners innumera-ble. Around the floor, rising tier above tier, were the choicest products of the hot house, while above all towered majestic palms and fragrant exotics. The orchestra was hidden from view in a mase of foliage in turn surrounded with a curtain of smilax.

At the southern end of the hall, upon a platform beaped with palms and roses in bloom, were crayon portraiture stat-nes of ex-President Cleveland and the table of hohor rested upon a platform running half the length of the hall. Longitudinal with this there were sixteen tables, each with an accommoda tion for eighty guests seated vis-a-vis. Every chair had its occupant, while there were hundreds more who, finding it impossible to gain a place upon th main floor, were content to view the proceedings from the gallery. It was shortly after 8 o'clock when the cheering from the large crowd which had gathered on the outside announced the arrival of the distinguished guests, and when the ex-senator, arm in the Thurman club, appeared upon the common strong that the Thurman club, appeared upon the common strong to the Thurman club, appeared upon the common strong to the Thurman club, appeared upon the the would never again be a candidate for a fine was intense. I am here to express in a few sentences my heartfelt appreciation of the honor you have so kindly seen fit to do me; to think a lar my whole soul my neigh-bors, felloweitizens of Ohio, and the distingushed gentlemen of other states for their mark of friendship and esteem. I am here, at the age of 77, to repeat my testimony, so often given of my confidence in the beneficent effects of free institutions and my firm belief of their duration on tain, extension over other and larger portions of the globe. I hope that it is not presumptions in me to say that I think that I have some of the necessary qualifi-cations of a witness on this subject.

It has been long enough for me to see my mative land, under free in-titutions, increase in popula-tion more than sevenfold, in wealth in a far, very fac, greater degree, in extent of territory more than double its area, in the general well being and prosperity of its people and in their educational advantages and religious privileges without a rival in the world; while its magnificent w of internal improvements, its wonderful agriculture, the great nation on improvements tures, and its marcel essentials of com-munication, the open horses as some and skill, surpass anything to be known by enty-seven years the con and it is a territy every government in a regarders become liberal principles. My friends, it is seventy-one years since, at 6 years of age, I became a citizen of Ohio and I have been one of her citizens from that day to this; and will no doubt remain one of her people until I shall be laid in my final resting place on earth speak of the uniform kindness that I have received from boyhood to old age, from the people of this state, of the honors they have: conferred upon me beyond my deserts, of made and whose attachment can never be forgotten for a moment or remembered without emotion, of the distinguished men of Ohio whom I have seen and with many of whom I was intimately acquainted, and of the just pride with which I have wit-nessed the wonderful growth of the state until her name is known and commands world. But Ohio is the theme upon which you will hear from your distinguished governor and no one is better qualified to do justice to it than he. I shall therefore confine myself to a few personal remi-niscenses, which if they serve no other pur-pose will prove to you that it is an old, old, these words: Before I conclude, there is one statement that I feel it my duty to make. In one of our town papers, a few days ago, I saw my name suggested as that of a proper candidate for the presidency or vice presidency in 1802. I regretted very much to see the suggestion, for appearing in a paper known to be very friendly to me and published in the place of my residence, it might naturally be suspected by strangers that it was inspired, or at least approved, by me. But such was not the fact. I had no idea that such a suggestion would be uade until I saw it in this paper. My friends, let me say to you in all sincerity and without the least mental reservation that I am not nor shall I ever again be a candidate for office. I have been sufficiently honored by my party and neither ask or desire any further honor than continued friendship and good will. Gentlemen. I have said enough; more, indeed, than I expected to say. Once more let me return you my sincerest thanks. You have gladdened the heart and brightened the footsteps of an old man, your devoted friend in his descent of the hill of life. when he has almost reached its foot. It is fitting that those who have faith in our destiny is a nation, who believe that there are noble things which belong distinetively to our character as a people and who prize at its true worth pure American citizenship, should gather here to-night. It is given us to contemplate the highest statesmanship, the most unyielding and disinterested devotion to the interests of the people, and the most valuable achievements in the cause of our country's welfare, all of which have been stimulated and accomplished through the influence and impulse of true, unperverted, sturdy Americanism. We rejoice in the example afforded on this occasion of genuine Amercan citizenship, revealed to us a safe and infallible interpreter of duty in all the emergencies of a long and honorable public career, and as an unfailing guide to use-

In this presence and in the atmosphere of these reflections, we should not miss the lesson they commend to us, nor fail to renew our appreciation of the value of this citizensqip, and revive our apprehension monarchy which taint the individual char-acter of the subject; the splendor which dazzles the popular eye and distracts the attention from abuses and stiffes discontent; the schemes of conquest and selfish aggrandizement which make a selfish people, have no legitimate place in our national life. Here the plain people of the land are the rulers. Their investiture of power is only accompanied with the conditions that they should love their country, that they should jealously guard and pro-tect its interests and their fame, and that all the intelligence with which they are en-dowed should be devoted to an understanding of its needs and the promotion of its welfare.

But it should never be forgotten that the influence which, more than all other things, has made our people safe depositaries of governmental power, and which has forished the surest guaranty of the strength and perpetuity of the republic, has its source in the American home. Here our patriotism is born and entwines itself with the growth of filial love, and here our children are taught the story of our free dom and independence. But above all, here in the bracing and wholesome atmosphere of uncomplaining frugality and conomy, the mental and moral attributes of our people have been firmly knit and invigorated. Never could it be said of any country so truly as ours, that the permanency of its institutions depends upon its
